NOTHING DOING.

Maud Muller on a summer's day
Pretended to be raking hay.
A local Judge came riding by,
She thought he was a fat old guy.

The Judge his nether lip did curl;
Considered Maud a lazy girl.
He gave his nag a sounding slap
And hede that animal "Giddey!"
Proseic was the episode.
His Honor vanished down the road.
He didn't want Maud for his wife.
How anromantic is this life!

Fishermen Cleveland Smart, and Archie Lewis Monday landed about a twelve-pound mud cat in their net in the river.

INCENDIARY FIRE

Threshing Machine Burned on Mason County Farm

A threshing machine belonging to Mr. Carpenter of Fleming county was destroyed by fire this morning about 4 o'clock on the farm of Mrs. Langhorne about 5 miles South of this city.

There was no fire about the machine and it is supposed to have been the dastardly work of an incendiary.

The bloodhounds were taken to the scene this morning and it is to be sincerely hoped that the guilty ones will be run down. The sooner all join hands in condemning such atrocious deeds, the better it will be for the community at large.

WHAT TO EAT IN HOT WEATHER.

Dr. Hervey W. Wiley, food expert of the Government, has a few simple rules for eating and drinking which apply to "grown-ups" during hot weather. Here are his commandments:

Eat one-fourth less in summer than in winter.

Eat meat in moderation. Select the lighter meats.

Banish all alcoholic beverages.

Eat most largely of cooked fruits and vegetables.

Drink nothing below 60 degrees in temperature, and drink sparingly.

Be careful to seek the society of cheerful friends.

Practice moderation in open-air exercise.

Don't fret; don't worry.

"Thousands of people are made sick in summer because they do not know how or what to eat," observed Dr. Wiley. "But the same criticism applies to the winter season as well. Few people follow definite rules. Moderate eating, moderate drinking, moderate exercise in the open air and cheerful friends will keep any good man alive through the summer.

"Eating in summer should be diminished by about one-quarter, inasmuch as the heat energy is one-quarter less than in winter.

"Fruits and vegetables are the normal diet for summer, provided they are cooked."

Wiles of the Deceitful Women Not to be Tolerated in Georgia

There promises to be a lively time in the Georgia Assembly this week when the bill introduced by Mr. Glenn of Whitfield, relating to the wiles and blandishments of women, comes up for action.

The measure, on which a favorable report has been ordered, provides that if any woman, whether maid or widow, shall betray into matrimony any unsuspecting male subject of that State, by scents, paints, powder, perfumes, cosmetic waters, artificial teeth, false hair, Spanish wool or any other kind of wool, iron stays, corsets, pads, hoop, high-heeled shoes, low-cut waists, lingerie lace, variegated drop-stitch or rainbow hosiery, or by any other artificial means or artificial practices, the marriage, upon conviction, shall be null and void.

Mr. Glenn, the author of the bill, has been at a summer resort recently, and says the bill is needed.

The annual announcement of the State University, Lexington, is made elsewhere. The time is in when schools to be patronized next session will be selected, and State University comes before the people with the best of recommendations.

It is estimated that the completion of the St. Mary's Cathedral at Covington will cost $200,000. The extension of the building to the sidewall will cost a large sum. In addition there will be two towers of 180 feet each on either side. There will also be a terra cotta window of about 20 feet in diameter over the main entrance, and the steps leading into the main entrance will be of granite. The location of the choir and the organ loft will be changed to the front of the edifice.

REPUBLICAN TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT,
WILLIAM H. TAFT,
of Ohio.
FOR VICE-PRESIDENT,
JAMES S. SHERMAN, of New York.
FOR CONGRESS,
Hon. JOSEPH B. BENNETT.

THE success of the Democratic Presidential ticket this year is predicated upon the biggest bunch of "If's" ever assembled together under one canvass.

Every proposition or assertion is prefixed by the little verb "if." If BRYAN can do this; if BRYAN can do that; if BRYAN can carry this and that State. If! If!! If!!! And then some more Ifs.

"If" this is to be a campaign of "Ifs," why, then, let her go, GALLAGHER. If leaves the persimmon high up on the tree and the race is anybody's money. Now comes The Lexington Herald, the Thunderer of the Bluegrass, with its little bunch of "Ifs" as a contribution to this otherwise remarkably monotonous "If campaign." The Herald jumps right in and begins with "But if" and ends with "But it." "If" you don't believe it, here it is:

"But if Mr. BRYAN is elected this year he cannot hope for the fruition of his policies within a single Presidential term. The Senate will certainly be Republican. There will have to be an almost unprecedented landslide, followed by another overwhelming victory two years later, to change the complexion of the Senate.

"Even if the Senate should become Democratic as the result of the elections of 1910, Mr. BRYAN's term would expire before he would have time to accomplish much. The complete triumph of liberal and progressive policies will require a practically unbroken series of victories for the next four years at least.

"If the Democrats can elect their ticket this year with a good working majority, and retain the confidence of the country in the Congressional elections of 1910, they will be in good position to win the Presidential election of 1912, and victory then would probably mean complete triumph for all the party is trying to do. But it is vain to hope for definite results of consequence at an earlier day."

THE simple life always appears more enticing in the good old summer time.

DICK JONES' HIT.

Many years ago when the lamented Dick Jones of Louisville was a member of the Legislature, and there were still a few wild deer in the mountain counties of Kentucky, a member of the House from that section offered a bill of the following title: "An act to prohibit the killing of deer in the counties of Clay, Jackson and Owsley for a period of five years."

Just about that time several feud killings had taken place in one of these counties, so when the bill came up for passage, Dick Jones jumped to his feet and said:

"Mr. Speaker, I move to amend the title of that bill by striking out the word 'deer' and inserting the word 'man.'"

It was such a palpable hit and raised such a laugh that the bill was actually defeated, although a meritorious one.

THE LOVEJOYS' BURGLAR

Mr. and Mrs. Lovejoy were sitting with the remains of their evening meal between them. Mrs. Lovejoy, with her elbows comfortably on the table, was sipping a cup of tea and wistfully looking across the table at her husband, who was immersed in the evening paper. Yes, they had been married long enough to get used to each other. Mrs. Lovejoy, after being shut up in a flat all day, was crazy to talk, but she had already learned better than to ask her husband any questions while he was deep in a newspaper story. Finally, however, as she saw his eyes switch to another story, she dare to break the silence.

"Well," she began tentatively, "what was going on downtown to-day?"

"Thing m'ch," came indistinctly from behind the paper. There was a short silence and then she tried again.

"I have a busy day down at the office."

"Mm," replied her husband.

There was a longer silence, and Mrs. Lovejoy set her teacup down in despatch.

"Henry," she said, "have you got a revolver?"

Mr. Lovejoy "feil" for this all right. He crumpled his paper up and stared at her in astonishment.

"Have I got a revolver? No, I have not. What made you ask such a question?"

"Because," said Mrs. Lovejoy, putting her chin down on her folded hands, "I think we ought to have one in the flat here."

"What are we going to shoot with it?" said Mr. Lovejoy, picking up his paper.

"Burglars," said Mrs. Lovejoy decisively.

Mr. Lovejoy dropped his paper again.

"Burglars!" he exclaimed. "Why, have you seen any reconnoitering around here?"

"No, but they are moving up in this direction. Some time ago the papers said they were robbing houses in this neighborhood. Then they moved up to the next block and frightened an old lady nearly to death. Then I saw yesterday where a house only a few doors away was entered, so next they will land up here," she ended triumphantly.

"So you think we ought to have a gun here to repel possible burglars," said Mr. Lovejoy, looking amused.

"Yes, I do," she answered with conviction. "I know I should feel much safer if I knew there was one in the house. Sometimes I wake up in the night and hear all sorts of creepy sounds and noises, only sometimes you snore so loud I can't hear them distinctly."

"Well, I guess I can handle any burglar that butts in here," said Mr. Lovejoy confidently.

"I suppose you could—if you waked up in time," said his wife, who failed to see the humor in her husband's boast as contrasted with his office-bred physique.

"Oh, well, then," said Mr. Lovejoy, with an indulgent air, "if it will make you feel any better I'll get a gun and keep it here. Anything to avoid an argument," and he went back to his paper.

Though Lovejoy would not admit it even to himself, his wife's arguments had made an impression on him. He had never owned a revolver in his life, but he decided that he himself would feel safer at night hereafter if he had a weapon within reach. So on his way home the next evening he bought a second-hand revolver in a pawnshop and carried it home. He showed it to his wife and spoke boastfully of "making any Raffles that poked his head in the room look like a pepper box."

Mrs. Lovejoy declared herself delighted and that hereafter she would be able to sleep in peace. However, she was dreadfully afraid of the weapon, and begged her husband to lock it up where she couldn't stumble over it and accidentally fire it off. So Mr. Lovejoy laughingly shoved the revolver into a bureau drawer and turned the key on it.

It was a Sunday afternoon a week or two later that Mr. and Mrs. Lovejoy left their flat for a visit to friends. The friends insisted on their remaining to dinner, so they did not reach home till 11 o'clock that night. Mrs. Lovejoy preceded her husband up the stairs.

"Why, Henry!" she exclaimed. "We forgot to lock the door!"

"Did we?" said her husband, only mildly interested; "why I am sure I locked it."

A shriek came from Mrs. Lovejoy, who had gone within. Her husband ran to her. She pointed in dumb horror. The sideboard in the dining-room had been swept clear of all portable silverware. A hurried investigation revealed that the bedroom had also been ransacked. The trail of the sneak-thief was everywhere evident.

Mr. Lovejoy sprang for the bureau drawer in which the pistol had lain forgotten ever since he had put it there. He fumbled in his pockets and then sat down weakly on the edge of the bed.

"My keys are in my other trousers pocket," he moaned. "We didn't lock the door after all."

Mrs. Lovejoy snatched at the drawer. It came open readily. It was quite bare within.

"And, by George!" groaned her husband. "They got the gun, too."

THE CITY'S SNAIL SERVICE.

The Slower the Work the Steadier the Job Has Been the Rule in the Public Works of Boston.

In its latest report to the mayor the finance commission deals with one of the most flagrant abuses in municipal service that has yet come before it. The item of labor is about the heaviest that has to be met by city appropriation, and a great deal depends upon its efficiency or inefficiency. It is a matter of common observation that the city employees are time killers. The sluggish pace at which they perform their labors is a popular joke, but it is no joke to those who pay the taxes and for every dollar contributed receive but the fraction of its value in service. Any one watching the performance of a gang of city men in any particular line of work can be convinced that we are supporting an army of drones. The principle by which they are governed is not a fair day's work for a fair day's pay, but the smallest amount of work that can be accomplished without endangering a position.

Unfortunately positions have been only too secure under recent conditions, because they have not depended upon values, but upon pull. It has been even probable during the last few years that a man was more in danger of losing his job from being too active than from being too inert. Activity endangers the opportunities of a larger number of men. The more the work can be made to hold out the greater the number of places for the benefit of the political contingent.

We have not needed an investigation to prove all this to the average citizen. The proof is patent wherever city work is carried on, but the finance commission has rendered a service by showing through comparison with the work of private corporations to what extent approximately the city is being defrauded and to what extent it has lost ground in efficiency during the past thirty years. Under the system of fewer hours there has been more than a proportional loss in accomplishment. This is not only demoralizing to all holding city jobs, but it is embarrassing to the claim of labor organizations that as much work could be done in an eight-hour day as in one of nine or ten hours. Thus they are not only cheating the city, but they are doing an injustice to the great industrial body for whose good faith they are in no small degree responsible.

The figures furnished by the commission are eloquent. They show that in a sewer department job the highest average number of bricks laid per hour was seventy-eight, whereas the lowest average upon metropolitan work was 165 and the highest 384, or nearly five times as much in the latter case. If this discrepancy exists in skilled labor, where some pride of calling may be supposed to exist, to even a greater extent it is likely to be found in those inferior lines where the deficiencies of a single worker are concealed in those of the whole number.—Boston Transcript.

MR. WILLIAM H. GILL.

Mr. William H. Gill died at his home near Washington Tuesday at noon, after a brief illness.

Deceased was a son of the late W. R. Gill and was about 24 years of age. He was a young man of many good qualities and leaves a host of friends in the Washington neighborhood and in this city who will regret to learn of his untimely death.

The funeral will take place Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock, sun time, with Rev. Paul Rhodes of the Washington Presbyterian Church in charge of the services. The interment will take place in the Washington Cemetery.

MRS. NANCY GRANT STONE.

Mrs. Nancy Grant Stone, one of Mayfield's highly respected and venerable citizens, passed away last evening at 6 o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Martha J. Collins, in East Second street, aged 97 years and 6 months.

Mrs. Stone was born near Lancaster, Ky., January 15th, 1811. She was married in Mt. Carmel to Thomas P. Stone in 1829, and after a residence in Missouri of nineteen years, removed to Mayfield in 1855, where she spent the remainder of her useful life, loved and respected by all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance.

She was preceded to the grave by her husband twenty-five years ago.

She was a zealous and devout member of the First Presbyterian Church of this city, having early in life espoused the cause of her Master. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Martha J. Collins and Mrs. M. F. Chase, both of this city, and two grandsons, Mr. Eugene Collins of Cincinnati and Mr. Harold H. Collins of this city.

The funeral arrangements have not been completed and will be given in tomorrow's paper.

MRS. CORNELIA MONTMOLLIN.

Mrs. Cornelie Montmollin, wife of the late Dr. James M. Montmollin, died yesterday at her home at Ashland.

Mrs. Montmollin was the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson, and was born at Greenup January 14th, 1847.

Mrs. Garrett B. Wall, one of the surviving children, was summoned Sunday to her mother's bedside from this city.

The funeral and interment of Mrs. Montmollin occurs this afternoon at Ashland.

Berkeley, Cal., Rejects M. O.

J. V. Mendenhall, town clerk, writes that the citizens voted against the proposition to issue bonds to establish an electric light plant in connection with an incinerating plant, for which the proposition to issue bonds was also defeated.—Electrical World.

An Unprofitable Monopoly.

During the past two years the operating costs of the municipal electric light plant of Verndale, Minn., exceeded the receipts by 35 per cent. If interest and depreciation were added the excess would be 50 per cent. The plant has a monopoly of the lighting business.

PUBLIC LEDGER
MAYSVILLE, KY.

Mrs. N. B. Fisher and daughter, Mrs. Ralph Harrison, of Vauxburg, are at the home of Mrs. John Armstrong of Forest avenue, who is very sick.

County Auditor L. E. Pearce of Lexington has bought from Mrs. M. A. Hooper and the other heirs, 270 acres of land in Jessamine county on the Kentucky river between Wilmore and Harrrodburg. The farm is known as the "old Haudy Place," and is on the Wilmore turnpike. The price agreed on is $40 an acre for 600 acres and $35 an acre for the remaining 370 acres. Mr. Pearce will take possession October 1st, and expects to convert the place into a stock farm, raising sheep and hogs chiefly.

The extreme heat is damaging the wheat in the Northwest.

The argument docket of the Kentucky Court of Appeals for the September term has been completed.

Judge J. P. Hobson of the Kentucky Court of Appeals has written an exposition of the Book of Revelation.

John B. Miller, at one time Paymaster of Marias at Washington City, is dead at his home at Paris, aged 65.

Rev. Dr. E. H. Rutherford has tendered his resignation as Pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church of Paris on account of ill health.

Charles Warren, who is a tenant on the farm of Mrs. James Rogere, had ten acres of wheat to average thirty-one bushels. John Brown has 200 acres that will probably average sixteen bushels or better to the acre. J. Norton Fitch has 125 acres that will yield about twenty bushels to the acre.—Jessamine News.

OCTOGENARIAN

Thinks He Will Live Longer If He Can Come Home

A special from St. Louis says James Atterton, aged 80 years, believes that if he could get back to Maysville he would live at least fifty years longer.

He is now with his son-in-law, William Bennett, in Upper Alton, Ill.

The old man has applied to Supervisor Ford of St. Louis for transportation to this city.

Did You Ever

Stop to think that if you personally selected the cloth for your own garments you would look different from the rank and file you meet, and that if this cloth were cut to your own measure, and skillfully and honestly tailored by hand, you would have clothes that fit you more perfectly and give you better service than the cloth being worn by the mass. Think it over, then have me make you a suit from the cloth and fashion you like best; you will then understand what real merchant tailoring is. The cost is but slight compared with the value given. Suits to order $18 to $40.
